OLL Pilgrimage to the Holy Land Walking in Jesus' Footsteps April 25 - May 4, 2011

Come and walk in the footsteps of Jesus along with our Pastor, Fr. Mike Vetrano.
Consider being with family and friends on a trip of a lifetime!

Walk the streets of Jerusalem and be in the place of our Christian heritage. Come to Bethlehem, visit the Basilica of the Nativity. Be at the Baptism site of Jesus on the Jordan River, sail on the Sea of Galilee and walk in the Garden of Gethsemane. You will visit the room of the Last Supper, walk on the Via Dolorosa "The Way of the Cross", and drive through the wilderness of Judea and the mountains of Jerusalem. All this on your trip of a lifetime.

For more information, our next meeting will be on Wednesday, August 25 at 7:30 PM in the Parish Center.

Top Reasons for NOT going to Mass this Summer...

1. It's hot.
2. It's too early.
3. It's a drag.
4. It's too long.
5. I'm wearing shorts.
6. I love the beach... I have to be there early.
7. We have so much going on during the day.

We've got the answer for you....

THE SIX!

Our Sunday night Mass continues throughout the Summer - it's casual, lively, less than an hour, at the end of the summer day and a great way to have some great summer fun and make God a part of it all! Look for us outside...and don't forget to bring a chair!

Are you interested in helping to make "The Six" happen? We need lectors, set up people, clean up people, greeters, welcomers and more! If you're interested or have some questions contact Robin, e-mail to robin@ollchurch.org.

Summer Evening Prayer 2010

The Seminarian Sent Forth -

Saludos desde la Parroquia de Santa Ana

(Greetings from the Parish of St. Anne's)

Friends –

Greetings from St. Anne's Parish in Brentwood! As part of our formation, each seminarian must develop with his Advisor a plan that will help him to grow in ministry and experience. I wrote to you over a month ago from the first part of that formation – the Southeast Pastoral Institute. I returned from this three week Spanish Institute able to speak a little bit of Spanish and have been working on that since I returned to New York.

The second part of my summer formation is living and working at St. Anne's R.C. Church in Brentwood – The "Mother Church of Brentwood" (How's that's for a motto!). I began my work here on June 19 and it has been a powerful and meaningful month for me – one that I hope will one day make me a more effective priest and person in the years ahead.

First, the parish community here has been wonderful! Don't worry – they've taken good care of me! There are many similarities in spirit and hospitality between OLL and St. Anne's. You can feel that right away. This is a community that works hard to welcome and to reach out to all who come to their door (sound familiar?!). There is no place like OLL, yet I have come to see parish life from a different and vital vantage point here in Brentwood.

Second, my experience here has helped me to experience Rectory living a bit. This was something my Advisor wanted me to experience as it is something totally new. There are four priests who live at St. Anne's and they have been wonderful to me as well. The priests here work hard in different areas of parish life. For example, there is only one priest who speaks Spanish and only one who speaks French Creole. Their work often brings them in contact with the Spanish and Haitian communities. So the rectory becomes a place to share about the experiences of the day, the situations and issues present in the parish and to offer and support. The priests here eat dinner together four nights a week and I have come to realize how important gathering around the table is to community building and living.

Third, living in an active multi-cultural parish has stretched and pushed me in good ways. While there are three distinct communities – English, Spanish and Haitian, they come together often for parish wide celebrations and events. I have also come to appreciate even more the struggles and pains associated with moving to a new land and the danger that required such a move. I have seen the importance of language these days. Just about every person I have been in the Spanish and Haitian (and English, obviously) communities is working to speak English and there are many programs offered to assist them. Yet participating in Mass proclaimed in Spanish or French-Creole or attempting to speak to them about pastoral issues in their first language (even when one's Spanish is not good, i.e. me!) brings great comfort and consolation. Attending the Spanish or Haitian Masses has also taught me a lot. I realize how difficult it must be not to be able to communicate and truthfully how distant one feels when they cannot understand what is being said to them. It is a valuable encouragement to keep working on understanding a new language. Working with these communities has been a powerful lesson – and one that I will surely take with me!

While I am happy here, know how much I miss everyone at OLL. Yet I feel a comforting connection. An "elder" of the community came up to me this week and said "I think it's great you have been formed by Mary at Our Lady of Lourdes and now you've been given over to her mother here at St. Anne's!"

Our Lady of Lourdes, pray for us – Saint Anne, pray for us!

Peace

Rest In Peace

Lena R. Conti died on July 16 and celebration of the Mass of Christian Burial was July 19. We extend our prayers to her children, grandchild, and entire family.

17th Sunday in Ordinary Time

People have lots of prayers that they would like answered. Whether it is petitions written into the Book of Intercessions at church, requests made of a priest or a friend, entreaties offered to God before bed, or appeals made in the midst of a crisis, we are always looking for an answer. Sometimes we pray knowing what we want, like a child sitting on Santa's lap with a list of Christmas toys. And many times we pray with the expectation that God will see things our way and give us what we ask for.

In this week's Gospel, Jesus teaches his disciples about prayer. Luke's version of the Lord's Prayer is a little different from Matthew's, but it is essentially the same. In Jesus' methodology, prayer starts with praising God (hallowed be your name) and then asks God to do what God wants (your kingdom come). Only then does prayer move on to posing our requests for God's consideration (give us each day our daily bread). And finally we ask for God's help (forgive us our sins). The Lord's Prayer became so much a part of Christian praying that the Fathers of the Church (early Christian writers like St. Augustine, St. Gregory, and St. Leo the Great) recommended that if a person couldn't remember any other prayer (like a psalm) he or she should just pray the Lord's Prayer instead.

The method of prayer that Jesus lays out for his disciples includes one final aspect—one that we like to forget. Luke's version puts it this way, "for we ourselves forgive everyone in debt to us." More commonly we say, "as we forgive those who trespass against us." Are we ready to have God act that way toward us? Do we really want God to treat us the way we treat others? That is the challenge, if we continue to pray the Lord's Prayer day after day.

What is the Essence of True Religion?

Ron Rolheiser, OMI

What defines true religion? What ultimately constitutes true worship? How do we know that we aren't rationalizing our own selves and calling it religion? How do we know that we aren't creating God in our own image and likeness and using religion for our own purposes?

Paul Tillich once distinguished between what he termed: Pseudo-religion, Quasi-religion, and True-religion. He defined them this way:

Pseudo-religion uses explicit religious language and sometimes even intends it in its real sense, but ultimately it doesn't open someone up to anything beyond what is highest within the individual self. In the end, it recycles human consciousness and doesn't open us up to the transcendent, to air beyond us. It uses the word "God", but its "God" doesn't take us beyond what is highest inside of ourselves. "God" is a higher power, an ideal, and a power beyond mundane consciousness, but "God" is not a transcendent power, a real person capable of parting the Red Sea or raising the body of Jesus. Nonetheless this "God" can be wonderfully positive in challenging us to what's highest inside of ourselves. It makes for a religion of positive thinking.

Quasi-religion doesn't use explicit religious language, but takes its adherents beyond what is highest inside of a person to what is highest inside of humanity itself. Many ideologies are quasi-religions. They demand that we sacrifice ourselves for something higher. Our own personal dreams are less important than the larger dream of humanity itself. Thus, an ideology such as Marxism, Greenpeace, or Feminism can demand that we sacrifice our own dreams and even our lives for the common good. While not using explicit religious language and sometimes even being explicitly atheistic, quasi-religion attains some of the qualities of true-religion, namely, it pushes its adherents to altruism, self-sacrifice, and purpose beyond idiosyncratic preference.

True-Religion might or might not use explicit religious language but, either way, it opens up its adherents to a vision and a reality beyond what is highest inside of the individual person and highest within the collective ideal of humanity itself. It opens us up to the transcendent, to a God who is real, beyond us, relates to us, and who asks very real things of us in terms of a response. True-religion, unlike its counterparts, does not recycle air that is already within our reality. In a manner of speaking, it brings in air from the outside, from beyond. The God it relates to is not a power already within the consciousness of a person or within the consciousness of humanity itself.

But how do we know if we have attained that? How do we know if our own religious practice is real, quasi, or pseudo? Jesus answered this by saying: "By their fruits you will know them." The authenticity of our religious practice should not be judged, as is commonly the case, by any of these criteria: Simple sincerity ("He's so convinced and sincere!"), religious passion ("He's on fire with God!"), dogmatic vigilance and purity ("He has such a passion for truth!"), commitment to justice ("He is so committed to the poor!"), faithful religious practice ("He has never missed church in his life!"), or even self-sacrifice ("He is willing to die for this!"). Any of these qualities can be present in a person and his or her religious practice might still not be true. Imbalance, fanaticism, and flat-out hatred can sometimes produce these qualities or be unhealthily mixed in with them. The older brother of the prodigal son never left his father's house and never did a thing wrong, but he was still unable to enter his father's joy.

How do we judge true religion?

Perhaps there isn't a simpler or clearer formula than the one St. Paul gives in the 5th chapter of his Epistle to the Galatians. He tells us that there are two spirits we can live by, the spirit of world (the "Sarx") and God's Holy Spirit.

The spirit of the world is marked by envy, anger, bitterness, gossip, factionalism, slander, idolatry, sexual misconduct, and arrogance; whereas the God's spirit, the Holy Spirit, is characterized by charity, joy, peace, patience, goodness, long-suffering, constancy, mildness, fidelity, chastity. Simply put, when our daily lives are characterized by envy, anger, bitterness, factionalism, slander, sexual misconduct, and arrogance, we should not delude ourselves into thinking that we are living in God's spirit, irrespective of the purity of our religious practice or commitment to a cause. We are living in God's spirit only when our lives show charity, joy, peace, patience, goodness, long-suffering, constancy, mildness, fidelity, and chastity. Living these qualities is true religion, nothing more and nothing less. We know we are breathing air beyond our own only when these qualities show forth in our lives.

Though we might delude ourselves and fool others for awhile with a religious practice that is something less than life in the spirit as Paul defines it, anything less than the real thing will ultimately have us standing, bitter and envious, outside the Father's joy.

Sharing the Gospel

Do you know how to pray? All you need to do is talk to God. He is your loving Father. Tell him how you would like to make him happy. Ask him to give you the things you really need. Ask him to help you forgive other people, just like he forgives you. God loves you, so talk to him often.
