Leaders Wanted

Pastoral Council Accepting Nominees

Our Pastoral Council is currently accepting nominations for new members to fill several open seats. The Pastoral Council is one of the most important leadership groups in the parish. Members of the parish meet approximately every 6 weeks to advise the pastor on issues affecting the mission and ministries of the parish. The Council has also taken an active role in sponsoring programs and events that serve the parish. Most importantly, our current Council will conduct a pastoral assessment of the parish to assist our pastor and team to plan for the future of our community.

A person who wishes to serve on the Pastoral Council must be a parishioner who desires to offer their time and insight to help the pastor and pastoral team form the vision and future of the parish. Pastoral Council members must have an interest and investment in the parish. Practically, this means that a nominee for the Pastoral Council must be a person who:

- Worships weekly in the parish and takes part in the spiritual life of the community
- Offers their time and talent in service or ministry to this community
- Supports the parish financially in a manner appropriate to their means

Parishioners may nominate either themselves or another parishioner for the Council. Eligible applicants will be asked to complete a profile.

Parishioners are appointed to the Council by the current Council in consultation with the pastor. The goal of this process is to insure that the Council represents the diversity of Our Lady of Lourdes and has the gifts and interests necessary to our present goals.

To nominate oneself, or another, for membership on the Pastoral Council begin by sending a letter or email to pastoralcouncil@ollchurch.org or by postal mail to Pastoral Council, c/o Our Lady of Lourdes Church, 455 Hunter Avenue, West Islip, NY 11795. All letters of nomination will be acknowledged and must include your name and return address.

MICAH*: An Interfaith Campaign to End Poverty on Long Island
(*Mobilized Interfaith Coalition Against Hunger)

“Do justice, love mercy, walk humbly with your God.” Micah, 6:8

The MICAH campaign seeks to address the underlying causes of hunger and poverty among working people on Long Island. The lack of affordable housing is the single most important reason that many people in our region cannot make ends meet: people turn to food pantries for emergency assistance because they cannot find housing they can afford.

A glimpse into the problem:

- Long Island is among the 10 least affordable places to live in the United States.
- Nassau and Suffolk counties have the highest rents in New York State.
- A one bedroom apartment averages $1,084 which half of Long Islanders cannot afford.
- Someone paid the minimum wage, $7.15 an hour, would have to work 151 hours to afford a one bedroom apartment—and there are only 168 hours in a week.
- Since people generally can afford to purchase a house that is 2½ times their annual income, a $250,000 house is affordable for the average homeowner on Long Island. Only 2 percent of houses are this price.
- Some families with incomes of $50,000 are becoming homeless.
- Families are being separated by the high cost of living on Long Island and employers are struggling to fill positions.
- Seniors on fixed incomes are not able to meet their home expenses and are moving to other areas.
- Young people are being forced to move out off the Island because they cannot find affordable, safe and legal rental apartments on Long Island.
- Teachers, nurses, fire fighters, school bus drivers, and painters cannot afford to buy or rent a home on Long Island, and we cannot afford to live without them.

At its conference at Adelphi University last April, MICAH developed a public-policy agenda for the coming year that includes creating a wider variety of housing options for Long Islanders, including:

“Towns and villages should adopt accessory apartment legislation to legalize, supervise and encourage the creation of accessory apartments.”

Creating accessory apartments can provide affordable rental homes for young adults, seniors and single parent families and can help home owners remain in their homes without changing the traditional look of their community, without requiring additional infrastructure such as roads and sewers, and without compromising valuable green space. Apartments above stores can help revitalize struggling downtown shopping areas. Housing located near public transportation and village centers creates vibrant neighborhoods. When affordable housing is done right, it increases the value of one’s home and creates the sort of diverse communities in which many people want to live, particularly the young workers Long Island desperately needs.

28th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Every four years, this country holds primary elections. Usually, two or three states vote at a time. On what is called Super Tuesday, more than twenty states hold their primary elections. And 2008 was no different; however, on this Super Tuesday there were reports in one state of voters showing up at their usual polling place to vote only to discover that their state had already had its election a week earlier, and in another state, people showed up to vote only to learn that their primary wasn't for a few more weeks. Some were finally ready, but it was too late; others tried to get in but weren't ready.

The parable of the wedding feast in today's reading from Matthew actually tells two different stories. In the first, the king prepared for his son's wedding and sent out an invitation to all he thought would attend. But no one took him seriously, and all refused to attend the wedding. The king had their city burned; one would assume they then wished they had attended the wedding, but their wishes came too late. In the second part of the parable, the king has invited just about anyone to the wedding; many come, but one who does is not dressed for a wedding; the king sees he is not ready to attend and escorts him out.

We are called to the kingdom of heaven; we cannot afford to wait to answer until the time is right for us. Nor can we assume that we will be welcome just because we think we deserve it. Remember, through his parables Jesus invites people to the feast of the kingdom, but he also asks for a radical choice: to gain the kingdom, one must give everything. Words are not enough, deeds are required (CCC 546). How we use our gifts of grace in preparation for the kingdom is what matters most.

David and Goliath

by Ron Rolheiser, OMI

There's no substitute for imagination. Without good images to provide us with vision, the world overpowers us and leaves us feeling small and helpless. Unless our symbols are working, fate can never be turned into destiny.

This is especially true regarding how we, as persons of faith, stand before a world that can often be cold, loveless, unjust, and hard. If you're a sensitive person it's easy to feel overwhelmed by your own powerlessness and seeming insignificance. What can you do? The powers of the world are so huge and universal while you are so small and limited.

Whenever we feel discouraged in this way, a helpful image can be the biblical picture of David standing before Goliath. It's an archetypal image of how, invariably, good stands before evil, justice before violence, sensitivity before brute indifference, and tenderness before iron. David standing before Goliath is the perennial image for how good and evil face off with each other in the struggle for life and death and how, in that struggle, what is good, just, and tender always looks hopelessly overmatched.

Here's the image:

At one point in her history, Israel, who here represents God's cause, is in battle against the Philistines who (as the word "philistine" still connotes) represent brutality, lack of justice, lack of feeling, lack of goodness, and lack of God. Their champion is a giant, Goliath, a brute of unparalleled strength who, in the picture presented, has no feelings, no sensitivity, no goodness. He walks onto the battlefield clothed in iron, seemingly inanimate, sneering, arrogant, disdainful of all opposition. Beside him stands his armour-bearer, also clothed in iron.

On the other side, stands Israel, intimidated in the face of this brute strength, knowing that, among them, nobody who can fight Goliath on his own terms.

So they change the terms! Instead of taking their strongest man, clothing him in iron, and sending him out against Goliath, they send a young boy, David, with no armour at all. He goes out barefoot, with only a slingshot, more a boy's toy than a weapon of war.

And he cuts a pathetic figure. He walks onto the battlefield as a naive child, unsophisticated in war, someone not to be taken seriously. That is also how Goliath sees him - "Am I a dog that you come out against me with sticks? You're not an opponent even worth fighting. This is a joke! Come over here and I will cut off your head and feed it to the birds!" Godless forces do not exactly cower when truth marches out to do battle against them.

But we know the outcome. David reaches into his shepherd's pouch, takes out his slingshot, inserts a smooth pebble, and his first shot penetrates the skull of the giant. He then cuts off Goliath's head with his own sword. A boy fells a giant; the toy of a child overpowers the weapons of war; what's naive defeats what's sophisticated; and sensitivity proves more powerful than iron.

There's a lesson in this:

That image, David before Goliath, the child before the giant, depicts how anyone who is a true defender of God's cause invariably stands before the world - hopelessly overmatched, looking naive, a child before an adult, bare skin against iron, a joke, someone not to be taken seriously. But victory belongs to the child. It's the giant that's vulnerable, it's iron that won't hold up, providing of course that the child has some smooth pebbles inside his or her shepherd's pouch.

What's a shepherd's pouch and what's inside of it that can fell a giant?

When David reached into his shepherd's pouch and took out a slingshot and a pebble, you can be sure that this was not the first time he had done this. As a shepherd, in the fields by himself, he would have spent countless lonely hours practising with his slingshot, searching for just the right pebbles, and then palming those pebbles to know their exact feel, to give them the feel of his hand, to really make them his own. When he walked out to face Goliath his weapons may have looked pathetic in comparison to his opponent's steel and iron, but he knew their exact feel, they were an extension of himself. And in that is the lesson.

Long before we walk onto any battlefield to confront what opposes God, love, truth, and feeling, we too need to spend countless lonely hours palming and polishing what's in our shepherd's pouch - prayer, sacraments, our traditions, and especially our charity and respect. These are David's pebbles, our weapons against Goliath. We need, through many lonely hours, to palm them, press them, and give them the smell and feel of our own skin. Then, when we fling them at the giant, they will penetrate the iron and hardness that stand in the way of God.

We won't always have spectacular results, like David. We won't always save the world or our own nation, but at least we will save our own sanity.
